Foreword

On behalf of BOMA International, I am pleased to present the 1990 BOMA Experience Exchange Report. For 70 years it has been the premier source of detailed industry income and expense information. In addition, among its many users, the Experience Exchange Report serves as an invaluable planning and budgeting resource.

The 1990 Experience Exchange Report has been designed with the user in mind. The tables contain a high level of detail, yet they are easy to read and interpret. Moreover, the data are presented in a number of ways in order to simplify comparisons between different types of properties.

I would like to join members of the Experience Exchange Report Section and the staff at BOMA International in thanking all who participated in the 1990 BOMA Experience Exchange Report Survey. Your continued support ensures the success of the publication.

Norman J. Short, RPA
Chairman

Acknowledgments:

We are indebted to the members of the Experience Exchange Report Section and the following BOMA members for their continuing support and invaluable guidance in the advancement of the Experience Exchange Report:

BOMA International would like to recognize those individuals contributing building data to the survey. Each and every participant is an important part of this publication, and only through these efforts are we able to present this information to the industry. We would also like to thank BOMA Executives, Presidents, and members for volunteering long hours in the promotion of the Experience Exchange Report survey drive.

Do You Need Even More Building Data?

Believe it or not, BOMA International can supply you with custom tailored Experience Exchange Report Tables . . . Just tell BOMA what you want!

BOMA can produce special Experience Exchange Report tables based on your own select criteria. You can receive a report with any combination of the following:

- country . . . . . U.S. or Canada
- city . . . . . any city reported
- location . . . . . downtown or suburban
- sector . . . . . private or government
- size . . . . . any square foot range
- age . . . . . any year range
- height . . . . . any story range
- type . . . . . agency-managed, all electric, financial, government, medical, multi-tenant, or single-purpose
- trends . . . . . same city, multiple years (1982-1989)

Each table ordered will contain the same types of information found in the standard tables in this publication. Income, Expenses, Occupancy, and Average Tenant Sizes.

Costs of reports depend on the detail you request and resultant computer processing time. BOMA International members willl receive a special discount.

Review the Experience Exchange Report Data for your city. Decide what specific criteria you would like to select based on the parameters indicated above. Contact the BOMA International Research Department at (202) 408-2688 today to place your order.

BOMA INTERNATIONAL

A User's Guide

The BOMA Experience Exchange Report provides published tables of operating income and expense data for office buildings throughout North America. The data is based on a voluntary survey of over 4,000 office building owners and managers whose buildings represent a wide and varied selection of office space. Building owners and managers receive the survey forms (Appendix A contains a sample form) in January of each year and return the forms to BOMA International by March 15th. BOMA International reviews the forms and compiles the data statistically into tables during April and May; publication and distribution of the book occurs in June.

Data Compilation

A completed Experience Exchange Report survey form contains information about a building's yearly operating costs and rental income, as well as data on the building's use and operating characteristics. The income and expense data is categorized according to the functional accounting categories outlined in the BOMA Functional Accounting Guide. Respondents are asked to measure and report space according to the BOMA/ANSI Standard Method for Measuring Floor Area in Office Buildings.

How Data Contributors Benefit

Building owners and managers who complete the survey forms each year not only support one of the industry's leading tools for monitoring and analyzing building performance but also receive an Expense Performance Comparison analysis for each building they submit. The Expense Performance Comparison analysis compares a respondent's actual operating expenses with similar buildings in their area on a line-by-line basis.

Organization of the Experience Exchange Report

The following material presents an explanation of how to interpret the data figures presented in the analyses.

The Experience Exchange Report contains four major sections of analyses: U.S. Private Sector, U.S. Government Sector, Canada Private Sector, and Canada Government Sector. Within each sector the analyses are grouped according to Cities, Special Studies, and National Cross-Tabulations. The city analyses appear in alphabetical order, with up to 12 analyses for each city. For each city, depending on sample size, sub-analyses distinguish building performance according to location (downtown vs. suburban) and building size.

Special studies contain analyses on specific types of office buildings, including comparisons of buildings reporting each year, all-electric buildings, and single purpose buildings.

The National Cross-Tabulations grouping provides analyses sorted by building location, age, size, and height characteristics.

With the exception of the National Cross-Tabulations tables that disaggregate buildings by occupancy levels, all of the tables reflect buildings that satisfied the following criteria in 1989:

1. At least 75% of the building rentable space is allocated to office type occupants.

2. The average occupancy level for 1989 or the office space was 50% or higher.

Thus, these tables reliably report income and expenses for properties that experienced traditionally prevalent operating conditions. The National Occupancy/Location tables report income and expenses for properties experiencing less than 50% occupancy (annual average), so that the input of lower occupancy levels on expenses can be examined.

Caveat

BOMA International has taken extreme care and exercised high standards of statistical procedures in processing and reporting data in this Experience Exchange Report and offers it as a useful service to the office building industry and the public.

However, data is presented with no warranty, either expressed or implied, as to its accuracy; BOMA International assumes no legal responsibility for the accuracy of the statistical presentations, comments, or other information contained herein. Neither does it assume any responsibility for the outcome of decisions, contracts, commitments, or obligations made on the basis of this information.

Sample Analysis

Explanation of the Analysis Format

The basic format of the analyses contained in the BOMA Experience Exchange Report consists of three sections. The top lefthand section provides income and expense Summary Data, the righthand provides Tenant/Occupancy Information, and the bottom portion supplies Expense Detail Data.

Summary Section

This section provides summary totals for 6 income and 11 expense categories.

The left side of the upper Summary Section presents income and expense figures for the Total Building Rentable Area (Office + Retail + Other). The right side provides figures for Total Office Rentable Area only. Most survey respondents use the BOMA/ANSI Standard Method for Measuring Floor Area in Office Buildings (Appendix C) to determine rentable area.

Under the Total Rentable Area headings are the number of buildings reporting in the analysis and the corresponding total building and total office square footage of those buildings.

	TOTAL BUILDING RENTABLE AREA	TOTAL OFFICE RENTABLE AREA
17 BLDS	1,227,796 SQ. FT.	1,212,026 SQ. FT

For all categories in the Summary Section, four types of data are provided: Average, Median, Mid-Range, and Number of Buildings.

BLDS	DOLLARS/SQ. FT.		MID RANGE
	AVG	MEDIAN	LOW	HIGH

The following set of fictitious data for 10 buildings demonstrates how these figures are calculated.

Cleaning Costs (Theoretical)

Building #	Square Feet	$	Expense
1	134,000	$	73,700
2	79,000	$	53,720
3	280,000	$	235,200
4	121,000	$	110,110
5	590,000	$	566,400
6	91,000	$	92,820
7	1,222,000	$	1,295,320
8	455,000	$	495,950
9	260,000	$	291,200
10	195,000	$	243,750
	3,427,000	$	3,458,170

The Average is calculated by adding all dollars, then all square footage, and dividing total dollars by total square footage.

$$\frac{\text{Total Dollars}}{\text{Total Sq. Ft.}} = \text{AVERAGE Dollars per Square Foot}$$

OR

$$\frac{$3,458,170}{$3,427,000} = $1.009 \text{ per Square Foot}$$

Building		Square Feet	$ Expense	Average/Sq. Ft.
1		134,000	$ 73,700	$ .55
2		79,000	$ 53,720	$ .68
3		280,000	$ 235,200	$ .84
4		121,000	$ 110,110	$ .91	.96
5	MEDIAN	590,000	$ 566,400	$ .96	+1.02
6	THE HALFWAY	91,000	$ 92,820	$1.02	1.98 ÷ 2 = .99
7	POINT OF THE	1,222,000	$1,295,320	$1.06
8	NUMBER OF	455,000	$ 495,950	$1.09
9	DATA ITEMS	260,000	$ 291,200	$1.12
10		195,000	$ 243,750	$1.25

This method is a true average in that it measures the cost or income per square foot without reference to the number or size of buildings contributing data. Buildings with larger amounts of square feet will affect the average value more than smaller buildings. This effect is most noticeable in analyses with few buildings reporting, especially if the large buildings report unusual income or expense figures.

This is one reason the Experience Exchange Report provides as many size group breakdowns as possible for each city, and includes medians and mid-ranges, to allow greater ability to judge the usefulness of each statistic.

The Median is a true measure of the midpoint of the data. To obtain a Median for the 10 sets of data in the following example, the dollars per square foot for each building are arrayed from the lowest value to the highest. Then the computer simply counts halfway through the data and finds the number that lies at the midpoint.

The Mid-Range is calculated by a formula that determines the upper and lower hinge values.

The Mid-Range is an indication of the middle 50% of the data; the Low Mid-Range figure is the number below which 25% of the data items lie, and the High Mid-Range figure is the number above which 25% of the data items lie. The result is a "bracket set" of figures that shows a range of 25% on either side of the center.

The Mid-Range shows the user the distribution of the data range. For data categories with three buildings or fewer, no Mid-Range will be shown.

	Building	Square Feet	$ Expense	Average/Sq. Ft.
1/4 (25%)	1	134,000	$ 73,700	.55
	2	79,000	$ 53,720	.68
	3	280,000	$ 235,200	.84
1/2 (50%)	4	121,000	$ 110,110	.91	THIS IS THE MID-RANGE- THE MIDDLE 50%
	5	590,000	$ 566,400	.96
	6	91,000	$ 92,820	1.02
	7	1,222,000	$1,295,320	1.06
	8	455,000	$ 495,950	1.09
1/4 (25%)	9	260,000	$ 291,200	1.12
	10	195,000	$ 243,750	1.25

Mid-50% RANGE: 1/4 (25%) FROM THE FIRST AND LAST DATA ITEMS

If most building reports show similar amounts, the Mid-Range will be close to the Median:

1	.65
2	.74
3	.78
4	.81
5	.84	Median	Mid
6	.88	.86	Range
7	.91
8	.96
9	1.01
10	1.12

For this set the corresponding analysis would look like this:

#	DOLLARS/SQ.FT.		MID RANGE
BLDS	AVG	MEDIAN	LOW	HIGH
10		.86	.78	.96

However, if the reports show a great variance in data, then the Mid-Range will show a wide spread:

1	.31

This analysis line would read as follows:

#	DOLLARS/SQ.FT.		MID RANGE
BLDS	AVG	MEDIAN	LOW	HIGH
10		.92	.42	1.16

The Number of Buildings (BLDS) shows the exact number of buildings supplying data for each income or expense category. It is an extremely significant figure because the number of buildings may vary per income or expense line item. Even if 20 buildings reported data for a particular city, it would not be unusual for only 12 of those buildings to provide data on, for example, elevator repair expenses. This value is therefore a measure or indicator of data quality: The larger the number, the more reliable the calculation of averages.

Income and Expense Categories

Income summary categories in the Experience Exchange Report include Office Area, Retail Area, Other Area, Total Rent, Miscellaneous, and Total Income.

Expense summary categories in the Experience Exchange Report include Cleaning, Repairs and Maintenance, Utilities, Roads/Grounds/Security, Administrative, Total Operating Expenses, Fixed Expenses, Total Operating and Fixed Expenses, Leasing Expenses, Total Payroll, and Total Contracts.

Tenant/Occupancy Information

The upper right section of the analysis provides information on the tenant and occupancy characteristics of the buildings reporting. For each tenant/occupancy item the figure in the first column is the statistical value while the figure in the second column represents the number of buildings reporting that item.

AVG % RETAIL OCCUPANCY	92.0	1
AVG $ RATE YR-END RENT	16.84	17

Tenant/Occupancy information is calculated as follows:

Average Square Feet Per Office Tenant

The Average Square Feet Per Office Tenant is computed by first calculating the actual occupied square footage of each building in the sample by multiplying the square footage of office space in each building by its office occupancy rate. These occupied square footages are then totaled for the entire sample.

Next, the number of tenants is totaled for the sample. Finally, the number of tenants is divided into the total amount of occupied office space to obtain the Average Square Feet Per Office Tenant.

Average Square Feet Per Retail Tenant

The Average Square Feet Per Retail Tenant is calculated in the same manner as that for office tenants except of course using retail space, retail occupancy rates, and retail tenants.

Average Square Feet Per Office Worker

Once again the Average Square Feet Per Office Worker is calculated similarly to the previous descriptions with the exception of using office space, office occupancy, and building population information.

Average Office Occupancy and Average Retail Occupancy

Average Office Occupancy and Average Retail Occupancy are calculated in a manner similar to the prior items. First, the actual occupied square footage of each building is calculated by taking the square footage of the office (or retail) space and multiplying by the office (or retail) occupancy rate. These occupied square footages are then totaled for the entire sample. Next, the total office (or retail) square footages are totaled for the entire sample. Finally, the total occupied office (retail) square footage is divided by the total office (or retail) square footage to obtain the average occupancy rate.

Average Rate Year-End Rent

The Average Rate Year-End Rent is the average of the base rate of the last space rented during calendar year 1988 and is calculated the same way as all other averages. The year-end base rent for each building is first calculated by multiplying the year-end dollar per square foot base rent by the square footage of office space. The calculated dollar amounts are totaled and then divided by the summation of office space.

Rentable/Gross Square Feet

Rentable/Gross Square Feet is calculated by totaling the "Total Construction Area of Building" figures for the sample, then totaling the "Total Rentable Square Feet" figures, and dividing the total of the Construction Area into the total of the "Total Rentable Square Feet." This statistic is designed to give the average efficiency ratio of the buildings in the sample.

Expense Detail Section

The bottom section of each analysis provides expense detail information. These expenses are components of the summary expense categories given in the upper Expense Summary Section. Over 50 individual expense detail categories are provided. A sample of this section:

OTHER MAINT/SUP	.23	17

In the lower Expense Detail Section only an Average figure is given for an expense detail category along with the Number of Buildings reporting that category. All Average figures represent Total Building Rentable Area.

The category totals in the Expense Detail Section will often vary slightly, in both dollar total and number of buildings, from the expense summary figures in the Summary Section. This is due to the format of the survey form. The front page of the EER survey form provides the Summary Section and Tenant/Occupancy Information figures. The back page, which is optional to the survey respondent, supplies Expense Detail data.

Many respondents report zero values for detailed expense categories (zero and blank responses are treated equivalently). In order to incorporate as much information as possible into the analyses, each expense item in the analysis is calculated separately according to the number of buildings responding to that survey question. This data compilation system allows use of individual data items even when a form is incomplete. The component figures, including the Expense Detail totals, stand by themselves. Consequently, the Number of Buildings statistic is very important when examining an analysis; it reveals how many buildings actually responded to a survey question.

In short, each statistic, whether an individual component or total category, can be considered meaningful in its own right and representative of the widest amount of data available.

Answers to Frequently Asked Questions

1. How are the statistics presented?

All data is presented in dollars per square foot per year based on the income and expense dollars incurred during the calendar/fiscal year 1989. For instance, 11.02 should be read as $11.02 per square foot per year. Canada analyses are reported in Canadian dollars.

2. What unit of floor measurement are these dollars applied against?

Most calculations are in Rentable Square Feet, or an equivalent floor measurement method as in the case of single, special purpose, and government buildings. Survey respondents are asked to report rentable square feet according to the BOMA/ANSI Standard Method for Measuring Floor Area in Office Buildings.

3. How are the income and expense categories determined?

The income and expense categories presented in the EER are based on functional accounting categories common throughout the office building industry. These categories are defined in the BOMA Functional Accounting Guide as well as the actual Survey Form (Appendix A).

4. Why don't the figures in the individual expense detail categories add up to the expense totals?

Each individual category, including the "Totals" category, stands by itself. In order to provide the most complete analysis of data possible, the system allows the use of individual data items, even when a survey form is incomplete. For example, a survey report may only provide information on Cleaning and Utilities. These two items will be used to compute statistics in these two categories, but the report will be removed from any totals computations and any other statistic where it did not provide information.

In short, each statistic, whether an individual category or a category "total," can be considered meaningful in its own right and representative of the widest amount of data available.

5. If a building does not provide dollar information for an item, is that building's square footage still used in the calculation?

No. When dollar information is not provided, the square footage for that building is removed from the calculation. This is why the number of buildings is shown for each category.

6. Where do I find energy costs?

Energy costs are the major component of the "Utilities" category. The only other component of this category is Water/Sewer, which tends to be a relatively small amount. Therefore, for general use purposes, the "Utilities" category may be considered to be energy.

7. How can I find out the cost per rented square foot?

"Office Rented" statistics, roughly comparable to those in older editions of the EER, can be derived by simply dividing any desired office area dollar statistic by the average occupancy rate.

8. Is the "average rate year-end rent" the current market rental rate?

No. This data figure does not reflect current market rental rate for several reasons.

First, it is a simple average of the amounts provided by the surveys that responded to the question: "The last time you leased office space during this reporting period, what was its annual base rental rate?"

Second, "the last time you leased space" could have been early in the reporting year. At the latest, it would be as of December 31, 1989. Therefore it can never be a "current" figure.

However, it does provide a strong indicator of the actual, contracted rate at which space was leased, generally during the latter part of the year. In this respect it may vary from the "asking price" in any city and may therefore be a better basis for projecting achievable income if no significant changes in the market have occurred since the time the data was collected.

9. In an analysis, does the Number of Buildings figure equal the number of survey reports used in that analysis?

No, the number of buildings does not necessarily indicate the number of survey reports in each analysis, because a single report may be filed for more than one building. For instance, a survey may be filed on a complex of several buildings using a single accounting system. Therefore, a Number of Buildings (# BLDS) figure indicating 10 buildings may actually be compiled from only six survey reports, with one or more reports containing more than one building. This factor affects the data in two ways.

First, a data item will show a Mid-Range only when four or more buildings report that item. But, regardless of the number of buildings shown, if only three or fewer reports provided data, no Mid-Range will be given.

Second, reports with more than one building are eliminated in analyses of multiple building characteristics, such as city size groups, because multiple building reports usually aggregate buildings of different sizes, ages, and/or heights. Removing multiple building reports allows the most accurate cross-tabulation analyses to be provided. Consequently, the number of buildings in the size grouping will often be less than the number of "All Downtown" or "All Suburban."

10. Whom may I contact for further information?

The BOMA International Research Staff in Washington, DC, will respond to all inquiries on EER calculations and procedures. You may contact them at (202) 408-2688.

A Note on the 1990 EER Data Processing and Use of the Tables

The statistics published in the Experience Exchange Report can be only as good as the data provided on the survey forms, and the quality with which this data is entered and processed to produce the publication's statistical tables. The research staff at BOMA International continually strives to improve the quality of this process to assure that the users of the statistics are not misled by erroneous or non-representational numbers. Nevertheless, data processing for an industry as diverse as the office building industry inherently contains many assumptions and conditions of which the reader should be aware.

Statistical Representation

In any typical metropolitan area, the number of office buildings is quite large, relative to the number for which data was received. This fact raises the question of how representative are the respondent properties of the population as a whole. For larger properties (those in excess of 100,000 square feet), the answer is "usually good" because the number of survey forms received is sufficiently high for larger properties to account for variations in expenses among them. For smaller properties and for those tables where sample sizes are smaller, the results are less reliable.

Variations in building size, age, height, occupancy, and management can and do affect individual income or expense line-items, however, that is the reason for publishing so many different tables. Unfortunately, the downside to this approach is that many tables contain statistics based on so few buildings that the input data is less likely to be representative of all office buildings conforming to that table's characteristics (location, occupancy, size, etc.).

Practically speaking, a safe approach is to start with the statistics in a table for all downtown or all suburban buildings in a city, then use the national cross-tabulation tables to identify the trend in a line-item as it relates to building size, occupancy, height, or age to extrapolate the result desired.

A critical number to examine is the number of buildings which provide data for a given line-item, such as cleaning expenses. If the number is much less than 25, then the resulting statistics in the table should be considered with caution.

Differences between the average value and the median value for a line-item provide clues to the diversity of the underlying sample. If the difference between the average and the median values is large, then the sample of buildings providing data may contain few very large buildings and many smaller properties. Furthermore, the large buildings are reporting very different income (or expenses) than the smaller properties. If the user's building is smaller, then the median values should be considered more heavily; if the user's building is larger, then the average values will be more representative.

Content of Line-Items

The statistics reported for each line-item are based on the data provided by building managers for that line-item. But what data do building managers provide for a given line-item? Does it cover the same building functions and operations in all buildings? In the case of very specific line-items, such as those appearing on the back page of the survey form (see Appendix A), the data is more likely to be reflective of what the line-item describes, and in accordance with the descriptive material in BOMA International's Functional Accounting Guide and Chart of Accounts. For the more broad line-items reported on the front page of the survey form, however, the reader must assess how likely are building managers to interpret the survey questions in a particular way.

Last year, BOMA International altered the processing of data for some line-items to produce more reliable statistics and we have consistently utilized the same data processing technique this year. Some of the changes initiated last year include splitting out commission expenses from legal and other professional fees to conform with the current industry practice; and allowing the report of the amortized portion of leasing expenses together with the directly expensed portion as the total leasing expenses for the year, as many property managers no longer account for leasing expenses purely on a cash basis.

Another source of confusion involves the reporting of total expenses. If a building manager reports component expenses for, say, cleaning and administration, but neglects utilities, repairs/maintenance, and roads/grounds/security, is it appropriate to include this respondent's total expenses (equal to the sum of cleaning and administration only) in the calculation of statistics for total expenses? To avoid misrepresentation, the calculation of statistics for total expenses includes only those buildings for which the manager provided data on cleaning, repairs and maintenance, and utilities, unless the total expenses reported by the building manager exceeded the sum of these three components. In other words, the statistics for total expenses will not include data from buildings in which the manager implied that no utilities were consumed, or the building required no repairs and maintenance, or cleaning.

Similarly, the calculation of Total Operating Plus Fixed Expenses now excludes those buildings for which neither fixed expenses nor total operating expenses were reported. Furthermore, with the exception of the buildings from the Government Sector, the calculation of Total Fixed Expenses in the Detail Section also excludes those buildings for which no real estate tax was provided.

A new data checking program was implemented for better quality control and it also eliminated outliers, data points that are far beyond the distribution of the rest of the data supplied. As a general rule, the outlier criterion was 400% or more above average values. Thus, many of the data for respondents', that was unusual but a true and accurate reflection of experience is not eliminated. The same test was applied to all the sample data sets for both two-year and five-year control sample analyses.

This year, the quality of data was also enhanced by adjusting the square footage of buildings whose managers employ various measurement methods other than the Rentable Area Method, and adjusting income for the owner-occupied space. Over 70% of the building managers responded to this survey reported the use of the BOMA Rentable Area Method in measuring space. By expanding the survey form to include questions on common area, usable area, usable/rentable ratio and rentable add-on ratio, we were able to convert the square footage of the rest of the buildings (30%) into rentable method. The standardization of most of the equations' denominator, namely the square footage, improves the accuracy of the resulted statistics. The average effect of this change was to decrease a typical expense item by 1.5%.

In the survey, property managers are not consistent in accounting for space occupied by the owners of the buildings in reporting income and expenses. In some cases, managers include expenses incurred from the owner-occupied space, but do not report the corresponding rent. These discrepancies were adjusted this year. The adjusted office income is derived by first calculating the rental rate in dollars per square foot using office space minus owner-occupied space as the denominator, and then multiply this rate by the total office space adjusted for office occupancy.

While this adjustment was not made in prior years, readers should be cautious in comparing the current year income data with data reported in older versions of the Experience Exchange Report. In other words, the percent change could be partly contributed to the owner-occupied space adjustment.

For year-to-year rental income comparison purpose, the use of current year's two-year control sample analyses is recommended since both sets of sample data were adjusted for owner-occupied space. On the other hand, since owner-occupied information was available only for the past two years, the data sets for the five-year control analyses were consistently not adjusted to achieve a better comparison. (See explanation of control samples in the bottom section of this article)

Averages and Medians

Some confusion has arisen when users of the Experience Exchange Report attempt to compare the detailed breakout of expenses, as reported on the back page of the survey form, with the totals reported on the front page. Before 1989, the median statistic only was calculated for data on the back page. Since then, medians were replaced by averages, or statistical means for data on the back page, so that these averages can be compared more readily with the averages reported on the front page.

The lower and upper mid-range values are intended to report the quartile values for a distribution. In other words, for a given line-item, the lower mid-range value should be the value for that building that is one fourth from the bottom of all the values reported. When the number of buildings reporting is small, however, the one-fourth mark (or three-fourths mark for the upper value) may not correspond exactly to a specific building. To improve the reliability of what is reported, the lower and upper mid-range values are the true hinges. The formula for calculating hinges is not presented here but is contained in many statistical methods manuals; basically, it involves calculating an average value between the two building values that are just below and above the one-fourth level (or three-fourth level).

For example, if a given table reports data for eight buildings, and the data from these eight buildings is ordered from lowest value to highest, then the lower hinge is calculated by averaging the values for buildings number two and three, and the upper hinge is calculated by averaging the values for buildings number six and seven. The median is calculated by averaging the values for buildings four and five.

Control Samples, and Measuring Trends

For many years the Experience Exchange Report has contained, as it does this year, tables of statistics for income and expenses for control samples: either two-year or five-year control samples. What this means is that the statistics reported for two different years, for example, are based on data supplied by the sample buildings in both years. Thus, changes from year to year are expected to be more reliable because the same buildings are reported in both years. This approach is intended to avoid the problem that arises when differences are calculated based on all buildings reporting in each of two years. In this latter situation, if the composition of the sample changes, are the changes in expenses from one year to the next attributable to changes in the industry, or changes in the samples reporting each year?

Unfortunately, control samples contain a bias, which is often referred to as a regression to the mean. For reasons that do not merit detailed explanation here, the use of control samples tends to underestimate increases in income from the first year to the second, and overestimate increases in expenses. The result is that estimates of changes in net operating income are biased downwards. This bias becomes more exaggerated in five year control sample statistics based on buildings that are reported for five consecutive years.

The Experience Exchange Report contains these control sample tables this year to assure continuity for those users who find them to be valuable. However, the analytical articles prepared for the Canadian and United States statistics contain the results of a more reliable method for determining year-to-year changes in industry income and expenses. The reader interested in these trends should read the appropriate analytical discussions.

Overview of the 1990 Survey Data

W. Ellen Ku and Deidre A. Schexnayder
Research Department, BOMA International

The 1990 BOMA Experience Exchange Report includes data for over 4,300 office buildings located throughout North America. This sample includes 3,574 U.S. private sector properties, 468 government office buildings in the United States, 185 privately held Canadian properties, and 108 government buildings in Canada (Table 1). In total, this sample covers over 770 million square feet of office space in North America.

Approximately 13 percent of the buildings reported in the Experience Exchange Report are smaller than 50,000 square feet. The average amount of space per building in the sample this year is 179,500 square feet, in contrast with an average size last year of 171,000 square feet. Nevertheless, because of their size, the larger buildings dominate the statistical average values (but not the median values) in those tables that do not distinguish buildings by size.

The survey process solicited responses from property managers throughout many North American cities, and 108 cities are represented this year by three or more properties. Buildings included in this survey are not all owned or managed by members of BOMA. Yet the responses, because they are voluntary, probably reflect the experience of the more efficiently managed office properties in the United States and Canada. For every property included in the statistical tables, over 75 percent of the rentable space is allocated to office type activities. Unless stated otherwise, each property included in a statistical table maintained an average occupancy level for the year greater than 50 percent. In fact, over seventy percent of the properties so included experienced occupancy levels for the year in excess of 75 percent, and the average occupancy level is typically about 90 percent (see separate analyses of U.S. and Canadian markets).

The analysis of the data, presented in separate discussions that follow, relies heavily on the comparison of reported performance for buildings in 1988 versus 1989. To assure that the analysis reflects trends in the industry as opposed to changes in the sample of all properties reporting to the Experience Exchange Report, control samples are employed. These control samples are composed of all respondents who reported in two or more years. Comparison of their reports from one year to the next, for the same buildings, is more likely to reveal the effects of changes in the industry (both space markets and operating environments) than is a comparison of all respondents to the Experience Exchange Report each year.

Nevertheless, the reader should be aware that the analyses of these control samples, as they are constructed in this study tend to produce a negative bias in the reported overall performance, as the data in Table 2 reveals. For those respondents included in a control sample, reported income does not rise as much, and reported expenses may tend to rise more, as in the U.S. Private Sector, than the comparable values for the sample as a whole.

Furthermore, many respondents report the results of more than one building on a survey form, and the number of buildings reported by a respondent may change from one year to the next. Because these shifts are small, these respondents are included in the control samples, and this is the reason why the number of buildings and the total square footage covered by a control sample may change from one year to the next.

Marginal Improvements Seen in U.S. Office Building Performance Amidst Weak Markets

W. Ellen Ku and Deidre A. Schexnayder

U.S. Private Sector

Office building owners and managers who reported to the Experience Exchange Report for calendar year 1989 suggest that operating performance has improved only marginally over 1988 due to weak markets. In contrast with the analysis of the 2-year control sample data for 1988 which reported a healthy 5.2% gain in net operating income on a real basis (adjusted for 4.8% inflation), this year's analysis indicates that building owners and managers achieved only a modest gain of 1.4%.

Based on comparison of performance for properties that were reported in both 1988 and 1989, total income increased by 5.0 percent, total operating, fixed, and leasing expenses increased by 3.7 percent (Table 1).

According to the data presented in Table 1, the median values did not reveal as bright a picture, which suggests that smaller office properties did not fare as well as did the larger properties. The larger properties dominate the results calculated on the basis of averages, and the smaller properties dominate the results based on analysis of median values.

No particular income or expense line-item dominated the results, as Table 1 reveals. Office income rose as well as retail income which reflects a slight increase in average office and retail occupancy levels (see Table 2). Average cleaning expenses increased on a nominal basis by 2.8 percent between 1988 and 1989. Fixed expenses (primarily composed of property taxes) that usually rise by 10 percent or more rose by 5.1 percent between 1988 and 1989.

Average net operating income (NOI) can be estimated by subtracting from the average value of reported total income the average value of total expenses. Average NOI rose by $0.47 per square foot last year, an increase of 6.5 percent.

These results are the averaged responses of owners and managers of 1,939 office buildings containing 395.4 million square feet of space. Although the statistics are not shown here, a comparison of performance for all U.S. private sector properties reported in the 1989 Experience Exchange Report (1988 data) and the 1990 Experience Exchange Report (1989 data) was consistent with the findings for the control sample. In fact, it was pointed out in the previous discussion on the data as a whole, the comparison of all properties is typically more positive than is the year to year change in performance for the properties in the control sample.

[1] Each line item is calculated on the basis of non-zero responses for that item; hence, total items may not agree with column totals
[2] Total Operating and Fixed plus Leasing Expenses on a weighted average basis, calculated from column entries
[3] Total Income less Total Expenses and Leasing, calculated from column entries; it is not reported by respondents

The results reported here, while indicative of trends for the entire industry, must be interpreted carefully, because the properties analyzed are not necessarily representative of the industry as a whole. For example, properties that reported an average occupancy level below 50 percent for 1989 are not included in this analysis.

Figure 1 illustrates the overall ratio of operating and fixed expenses, by expense categories, to total expenses in the U.S. private sector. Based on the complete sample of private sector respondents, fixed expenses, notably property taxes and insurance, constitute the largest source of expenses in 1989. Utilities expenses, which are almost all energy, account for a slightly lower proportion. Fixed expenses and utilities expenses account for over 50 percent of total operating plus fixed expenses.

U.S. Government Sector

Managers of government buildings reporting to the Experience Exchange Report, whether they managed federal, state, county, or municipal properties, experienced a decrease in expenses on a real level, as Table 3 reveals. The data in this table, which reflects a control sample of 388 government buildings, indicates that while the utility costs increased by 5.6 percent or $0.08 per square foot, the repairs and maintenance expenses experienced a zero percent change between 1988 and 1989. Administrative expenses contributed the most to the decrease in operating expenses on a proportional basis, -5.8% percent, followed by cleaning expenses, -3.0 percent.

Overall, the buildings included in this control sample reported a 1.8 percent nominal increase in total expenses, or $0.08 per square foot. Adjusted for an inflation rate of 4.8 percent, the decrease in average total expenses between 1988 and 1989 was 3.1 percent.

Summary

The office properties in each city (and, for each city, downtown versus suburban locations) can be expected to report performance that vary from the overall, nationally averaged results reviewed here.

The Experience Exchange Report contains many tables to assist in distinguishing among these differences because they are so substantial and important. Nevertheless, the overall direction and trends of the office building industry can be assessed from a review of the averaged performance results of 589 U.S. private sector properties that have reported every year for the last five years (or more).

Tables 2 and 4-5 and Figure 2 illustrate the significant impact that an excessive amount of office space on the market has had on office property management and operations. In contrast with the results for the two year control sample, the buildings covered in the five year control sample continue to report a decline in real estimated net operating income. In fact, the levels reported in 1989 are lower than those reported five years earlier in 1985, when they are adjusted for inflation. Nevertheless, an examination of the nominal value suggests that the net operating income rose 3.4 percent from 1988.

These figures may not be reflective of the market as a whole, of course, because of the selectivity of the sample. But they do reflect the impact that new space has had on the occupancy of prime, existing properties that were previously fully occupied. As Table 2 reveals, average occupancy levels in the five year control sample properties continue to decline, and at a higher rate than previously.

Canadian Office Buildings Achieve a Real Gain in Net Operating Income In Spite of High Inflation Rate

W. Ellen Ku and Deidre A. Schexnayder

Canada Private Office Buildings

The owners and managers of private sector Canadian office buildings experienced a gain in net operating income between 1988 and 1989, based on a control sample survey of 115 properties encompassing almost 31 million square feet of space. These properties, for which income and expense data was reported in both 1988 and 1989, achieved a 7.5 percent increase, or $.80 (Canadian) per square foot, in estimated average net operating income in 1989, relative to 1988. Adjusted for a 5 percent inflation rate, the real gain was 2.2 percent.

The $.80 increase per square foot was the result of a $1.45 per square foot increase in average total income, which was offset by a $0.44 per square foot increase in average operating expenses (Table 1). The estimate of total expenses (including leasing) rose by $0.65 per square foot, or a 7.2% increase.

Contrary to previous years, the cost of cleaning increased in Canadian private sector office buildings in 1989. Average cleaning expenses increased on a nominal basis, 7.8%, or $.07 per square foot. The other major operating expenses, repairs/maintenance and utilities, rose from last year, 7.0% and 10.2% respectively. Average administrative expenses rose by 6.3 percent between 1988 and 1989. Roads, grounds and security took a 22.9% jump in comparison a zero percent increase a year ago.

A phenomenon which appears to be consistent with a longstanding trend is the reported change in average fixed costs, primarily property taxes. Between 1988 and 1989, the control sample buildings reported an increase of $0.32 per square foot, or about 9.9 percent. This corresponds with a trend of several years duration, in which the typical increase in average fixed expenses was approximately 10 percent.

A closer look at mean and median measurements suggests that smaller properties in Canada did not fare as well as larger buildings. As Table 1 reveals, the percent change in the median value for total income was smaller than the percent change in the average value, which indicates that smaller properties, which dominate the median value, did not experience as large income increases as did the larger buildings. The median value for total operating plus fixed expenses rose more between 1988 and 1989 than did the average value for total operating plus fixed expenses.

All of the results reported here must be regarded cautiously because of the small sample size. Whereas data covering 185 private office buildings in Canada were received this year, reports for only 115 of these properties were received in 1988 as well. Furthermore, arithmetic by columns reveals some inconsistencies because each line item is reported and analyzed separately. Finally, as the Overview article presented at the front of the book points out, analysis of net operating income from control samples, as these are constructed, tend to be biased downwards, that is, to imply less favorable results than those actually achieved by the typical property owner or manager.

Figure 1 illustrates the ratio of expenses by category to the total for all Canada private sector respondents. The leading source of expense for Canadian office properties continues to be fixed expenses, followed by utilities, repairs/maintenance, and cleaning. In contrast with property managers' experience in the United States, Canadian property owners pay substantially more in property taxes, the major component of fixed expenses.

Canada Government Office Buildings

The analysis of Canadian government office buildings reporting to the Experience Exchange Report this year suggests that increases in total operating expenses exceeded the rate of inflation by 7.4%. Closer examination of individual expenses components is presented as follows. The three major components of expense, cleaning, repairs/maintenance, and utilities, all experienced increases in expenses above the rate of inflation in 1989 (5.0%) if average costs are examined. Average cleaning costs, for example, rose by 6.3 percent, from $0.96 to $1.02 per square foot. Average repairs and maintenance expenses rose by 16.4 percent, from $1.28 to $1.49 per square foot, while the percent change in the median reveals a 5.8 percent decrease. This might suggest that there are more large properties undergoing major repairs and maintenance activities, which would skew the average to the high side. Administrative expenses rose 20.6 percent, or $.07 per square foot, and utilities increased by 4.6 percent, from $1.53 to $1.60 per square foot. Reported total operating expenses rose by 13.2 percent, or $0.55 per square foot. On a real basis, adjusted for inflation, total operating expenses actually rose 7.4 percent.

All of these results must be considered with due caution, however, because the sample size is so small: 81 buildings containing only 12.9 million square feet of space.

Summary

An examination of the occupancy, income, and expense experiences for Canadian private office properties that have reported to the Experience Exchange Report for the last five years places the performance of the properties in the two year control sample in perspective. As Table 2 reveals, occupancy levels for the 2-year control sample of properties reveals a slight increase from 89.2% in 1988 to 90.9% in 1989. The 5-year control indicates a decrease from 95.5% in 1988 to 94% in 1989.

In both 1988 and 1989, estimated net operating income increased at a rate exceeding the inflation rate, so that these properties experienced increases in estimated real net operating income. In 1989, the increases were slightly greater than they were in 1988, primarily due to an increase in total income and a drastic decrease in total operating and fixed expenses over last year.

In contrast with the experience of a five year control sample of private sector U.S. properties which realized an increase in fixed expenses of 30.2 percent over five years, the comparable figure for the Canadian properties was less than 15 percent. On a real basis, Canadian properties saw a drop in fixed expenses, notably property taxes, over the five year period. It is important to point out, however, that Canadian properties pay fixed expenses that on average are approximately 35 percent higher than the payments by U.S. properties.
